Next Sunday has been proclaimed as Mother's Day, a day set apart especially for the honor of the mother's who are still with us and the memory of those who have passed on to the better land. Surely this is a day which everyone can and will conscientiously observe. Who is there whether the mother be near or far, who would allow one disrespectful word to be spoken of that most lovable person we ever knew? Probably no one has attained what he set out to attain. But who is there that will deny that the manhood that is in him or the good he has attained, was the result of the mother's teaching? Mother's love has recalled more wayward boys to the path of righteousness than any other single influence. Mother's prayers have kept more boys in the straight and narrow path than can be estimated. Some one has said "More things are wrought by prayer than this world ever dreamed of." Well might we paraphrase this and say "more things have been wrought by Mother's prayer than this world ever dreamed of." Let us wear a bright flower for the mothers who are here or a white flower in memory of the mother who has gone before.

A discovery results in an art; an art produces a comfort; a comfort made cheaply accessible adds family on family to the population; and a family is a new creation of thinking, reasoning, inventing, and discovering beings. Thus, instead of arriving at the end, we are at the beginning of the series, and ready to start with recruited numbers on the great and beneficent career of useful knowledge.—Edward Everett.

Need No Soap With This Water.

The water in Lake Van, in Asiatic Turkey, which is about 60 miles long by from 20 to 30 miles wide, is so strongly impregnated with potash that the residents along its shores use it to wash clothing without the use of soap.
